Larry And Darlene Engle Retire From Greenhouse

By Kay Poeth

Darlene and Larry Engle bid good-bye to the successful business that they have grown together over the past 5 decades at Engle's Farm & Greenhouse. It is now under new ownership.

In November 2021, with heavy hearts Larry and Darlene Engle announced that they had sold Engle's Farm & Greenhouses located at 171 Greenhouse Road in Middleburg.

"We want to thank all our customers for a successful 50 years of growing our business. We also celebrated our 50th wedding anniversary this year which makes it a milestone for both our life and business," said the Engles.

For nearly 50 years, Larry and Darlene Engle have welcomed customers to their business. Customers have traveled from near and far for the quality products and wide selection of plants and vegetable. The business first started out growing seedless watermelons and cantaloupes. In 1974, they had a farm market for our fresh fruit and vegetables. In 1983, Engle's became a Pa. Certified Farm Market.

"Customers then started asking for our plants," explained Darlene. "That was the start of selling flower and vegetable plants. With the help of our loyal employees, some who have been here for nearly 30 years, we steadily grew into 60,000 sq. ft. and 16 greenhouses. We have grown annuals, vegetable, herbs, a very large selection of perennials, and we're known for our starter perennials of over 200 varieties." Engle's Farm and Greenhouses can truly claim that their products are locally grown.

Then Darlene added, "We were one of the first greenhouses in the area to sell Proven Winner plants. Now, the plant is recognized by its trademark."

Larry and Darlene didn't mind the many long days in the greenhouse. They both wanted to grow a beautiful crop for their customers in the spring.

What is the secret to the success of Engle's Greenhouse? Darlene quickly credits Larry's passion for growing quality plants. "The plants started as a seed, unrooted cutting, or plug. Larry diligently watered and fertilized them. He had his schedule when to do certain things for the plants."

Darlene has always strived to provide the best customer service and best customer experience. "Our customers have been like friends to us. We are proud to say we have had many 3 generation families come to the greenhouse: grandparents, parents, and now adult children!"

Over the years, Larry and Darlene Engle have had many loyal customers. "One customer told us when she heard we were selling our business that we were the 'Corner Stone of Middleburg'. Other customers call Engle's Greenhouse their 'Happy Place'."

"We just want to say again, thank you and how special our customers and employees were to the success of our business," said Larry and Darlene Engle with heartfelt gratitude.

Engle's Farm & Greenhouses is under new ownership. Ben Lizardi from Beavertown is the new owner. The new name is Engle's Farm & Greenhouse LLC. Most of the employees will continue working for Ben, so customers will see many familiar faces.

"We wish him the best in building upon our years of a successful business," said Larry and Darlene Engle.

A River Rat's Ramblings: Fall 1952 Eels

By Jim Charles; Vol. 1, Story 5

Awakened by the smell of fresh perked coffee, I shook Tim awake and said, "It's Saturday, we have to go to Gemberling's boat landing and see how many eels they got last night." Tim and I shared a bedroom and a full size bed that was right over the kitchen. With the heat register opened we got all the good smells coming from the kitchen. We hopped up, put on our play clothes, pulled the covers over the pillows, brushed our teeth, and went down stairs... all in about 5 minutes.

"Good morning boys, how'd you sleep?" mom asked. "Good, got to go check eels," I replied. "Breakfast first," came her voice from the pantry. On the table were two cereal bowls, two spoons, a glass bottle of milk from Selinsgrove Dairies and a box of Wheaties and a plastic bag of Puffed Rice. One half bowl of Wheaties on the bottom with the Puffed Rice on top of the Wheaties, just the way I taught Tim how to eat it. Now, I'd carefully pour the milk into the bowls until the Puffed Rice started to fall over the side of the bowls, a teaspoon of sugar and we were ready to eat.

The expected, "Don't you boy's make a mess on that table," came mom's voice still in the pantry. Why do moms always say that when they know we are going to make a mess? Tim and I always had to have a box of cereal sitting in front of us while we ate breakfast, even though we couldn't read all the words. We finished our cereal almost as fast as we brushed our teeth.

"Ready to go over to Gemberling's mom," I said as we grabbed our coats off the rack by the back door. "Not yet boys, you have to wait for your sisters," mom said looking directly at me. Good Lord in Heaven, I thought, the eels will all be cleaned til we get there. Then, in my most grown up voice I said, "Mom, the Gemberlings will all be there and Mrs. Gemberling always watches us while we're there." Mom thought for a moment, "OK, but Jimmy you have to take Timmy's hand and your river boots are on the back porch." Dragging Tim by the hand we went out the door, jumped into our boots and were on our way across the yard to the Gemberling's boat landing.

As we walked by our neighbor's house, Mary Kemberling called from her porch. "Jimmy, I would like one eel, but not a great big one." "OK," I replied. Mary and her daughter, Pauline, lived between our house and the Gemberling's house. All three of our families, Gemberlings, Kemberlings, and Charles's had their roots deep in Isle of Que soil. Lynd Gemberling was a cousin to my grandmother Matilda Gemberling Charles.

As Tim and I got to the Gemberling's boat landing, Lynd and his son Bud were just pulling in with their catch of eels. Waiting at the boat landing were Lynd's wife Hilda and their youngest son Wayne. They had brought all the gear for cleanin eels. A big river rock sat beside a pile of sand next to a sycamore tree at their landing. They had 32 eels which was a fair catch for 1952, but 20 years ago they would have caught 100 to 150 eels a night.

Now, the cleaning process began. First, Lynd would get some eel slime on his hands, press the palms of his hands onto the pile of sand and reaching into the boat of wiggling eels with one swift motion he would grab an eel and smash it's head on the big rock. Lynd now handed the stunned eel to Bud who wedged the head between two 16 penny spikes in the sycamore which held the eel by its gill plates. With a precision cut of his knife Bud slit the eel from the gill plate down its belly all the way to the tail. Bud now cut all the way around the eel just below the gill plate and with a pair of pliers in each hand grabbed a piece of skin on each side of the eel and stripped the skin all the way to the tail. He now cut off the tail and head - threw them in the gut bucket. He handed the skinned eel to Wayne who washed it in clean water and put it in a large porcelain dish pan. If there was eel row (eggs) in any of them the sack of row was removed and placed in a clean pint jar.

After they had cleaned several eels I told Hilda that Mary wanted one eel. She pulled one out, wrapped it in newspaper, and said it would be a quarter. I ran up to Mary's house and delivered the eel and got two dimes and a nickel. When I gave the money to Hilda she handed the nickel back to me for taking the eel to Mary. I told her it wasn't necessary but she insisted. What I hadn't mentioned was that Mary had given me a nickel for bringing the eel to her. Ten cents for a 50 yard delivery was good money. My sisters had shown up and taken my brother home so I didn't have to watch him.

I stayed until the last eels were cleaned and sold. A man from the Moose Lodge bought 10 eels and another from the Odd Fellows Hall bought 5. I wondered about the man from the Odd Fellows as he looked perfectly normal to me.

The actual catching of eels will have to wait for my next story, it's called fishin for eels but there is no hook and line involved.

This is a set of stories by Jim Charles about his experiences and adventures growing up on the Isle of Que.

Congressman Keller Votes Against The America COMPETES Act

Congressman Fred Keller (PA-12) released the following statement after voting against the America COMPETES Act: "Congress has a responsibility to confront the rising threat our nation faces from the Chinese Communist Party. The CCP's long record of human rights abuses, well-documented efforts to undermine our learning institutions, persistent theft of American intellectual property, and its role in covering up the origins of the COVID-19 pandemic underscore a moral imperative for this body to hold China accountable."

Keller continues, "The so-called America COMPETES Act fails to meaningfully address any of these actions. Instead, Speaker Pelosi's bill would line the CCP's pockets and give China even more opportunities to steal our intellectual property. The partisan legislation is a total gift to China, letting the CCP completely off the hook for its COVID-19 cover-up and inviting even more malicious Chinese influence into the United States."

"Moreover, this bill would cost $250 billion, with no mechanism in place to offset its colossal price tag. Last summer, co-sponsored the Countering Communist China Act, which would effectively address these issues at a fraction of this bill's cost. Unfortunately, Washington Democrats' refusal to work across the aisle means the American people will end up footing the bill for this giveaway to Communist China."

According to Congressman Keller, the 2,900-page bill contains several provisions which will harm America's economic competitiveness by:

- Creating a new visa carve out program, allowing an unlimited number of Chinese Communist Party members to carry out their anti-democratic activities in the United States. (p. 1689)
 - Directing the United States and China to collaborate on 'parallel initiatives' on research and development, enabling the CCP to continue stealing American intellectual property. (p. 1340)
 - Making China eligible for international funding from the World Bank Group. (p. 1480)
 - Failing to ban federal funding for colleges and universities that host Confucius Institutes, an arm of the Chinese Communist Party actively seeking to undermine education centers. (p. 1967)
 - Urging the United States to abide by the Paris Climate Agreement, crippling our economic output while failing to regulate China's far more rampant pollution. (p. 1323)
- The America COMPETES Act also includes costly provisions that have nothing to do with China, such as:
- Sending $8 billion of American tax dollars to the United Nations Green Climate Fund. (p. 1392)
 - Establishing a $6 million oceanic research program and a 'Coral Reef Task Force'. (p. 1645)
 - Providing $5 million to the National Science Foundation to hire a Chief Diversity Officer. (p. 328)
 - Allocating $2 million in new, annual foreign aid spending to combat climate change. (p. 1375)
 - Directing the U.S. Armed Forces to train soldiers on combating climate change events. (p. 1396)
